Cookies policy

Préambule

This cookies policy explains what cookies are, the types of cookies we use, i.e. the information we collect using cookies, how this information is used and how to control cookie preferences.

1. What are cookies ?

A cookie is a text file that is useful for browsing websites. It is stored on the hard drive of your computer, tablet or smartphone when you consult web content. It is not linked to a person but to a device.

Temporary session cookies are automatically deleted at the end of the browsing session, while longer-lasting cookies remain stored beyond the end of the session. They are automatically deactivated when their programmed duration expires.

2. Cookies used by the Institute

The list below details the cookies used on our website.

- Necessary cookies

They help to make the website usable by activating basic functions. The website cannot function properly without these cookies. They are checked by default and are mandatory.

- Performance cookies

These cookies allow us to count visits and traffic sources so we can measure and improve the performance of our site. They help us to know which pages are the most and least popular and see how visitors move around the site. All information these cookies collect is aggregated and therefore anonymous. If you do not allow these cookies we will not know when you have visited our site, and will not be able to monitor its performance.

Name	Host	Duration	Description
_ga	graduateinstitute.ch	365 Days	This cookie name is associated with Google Universal Analytics - which is a significant update to

			Google's more commonly used analytics service. This cookie is used to distinguish unique users by assigning a randomly generated number as a client identifier. 3. Social media and third-party cookies (created and managed by external services)

The Institute is present and active on social media. Social media plugins can be recognised by the presence of the logo of the corresponding social network.

When you visit a page on our website that contains an activated plugin, your browser establishes a connection with the server of the third-party provider. Certain information is transmitted to the third-party service provider.

Even if you are not a member of the corresponding social networks, it is possible that they may be aware of your IP address via the social plugin.

If you are connected to one of the social networks, the third-party service providers can directly attribute your visit to our website to your personal profile in the social network. If you interact with the plugins, the corresponding information is also transmitted to a server of the third-party service providers where it is stored. In addition, the information will be published on the social network on your accounts. To find out about the purpose and extent of data collection, the subsequent processing and use of data by the third-party provider, as well as your rights in this respect and the options for adjusting to protect your privacy, please refer to the third-party provider's information on data protection.

The cookie policy of these third parties is beyond our control.

If you wish to prevent social media from attributing the data collected on our websites to your personal profile in the corresponding social network, please log out of the social network in question before visiting our websites.

4. Google analytics

Google Analytics is a web analytics service provided by Google, Inc. of the United States ('Google'). The information generated by the cookie about your use of the website (including your IP address) ('data') will be transmitted to and stored by Google on servers outside Switzerland, in particular in the United States. Google will use this information for the purpose of evaluating your use of the website, compiling reports on website activity for the Institute and providing other services relating to website activity and internet usage.

Google adheres to the Swiss-US Data Privacy Framework and undertakes to ensure an adequate level of protection for data transmitted to the United States.

The Institute has also signed standard contractual clauses (SCC) with Google, which provide additional guarantees in terms of data protection.

Disclosure to third parties: Google may disclose data to third parties where required to do so by law or where such third parties process the data on Google's behalf, including in particular the Institute. To the best of our knowledge, Google will not associate your IP address with any other data held by Google. For its part, the Institute undertakes not to pass on all or part of this data to third parties.

Visitor's agreement resulting from the connection: by connecting to the sites, you expressly agree to the general conditions of use of Google Analytics, in particular to the processing of your personal data by Google under the conditions set out in the General Conditions and the Legal Notice.

Exclusion of all liability in relation to Google Analytics :The Institute declines all liability, in any form and for any reason whatsoever, for any damage of any kind whatsoever, in particular in connection with the use of Google Analytics and/or the processing of data by Google.

5. Your rights to object to cookies

You can delete all the cookies already on your device by deleting your browser's browsing history. All the cookies from the sites you have visited will be deleted, but you may lose certain preferences relating to the sites.

As a general rule, web browsers are configured to accept cookies.

You can deactivate the use of cookies by selecting the appropriate settings on your browser. However, deactivating cookies may prevent you from using certain features of this site. To do this, you can refer to your browser software and follow the instructions. In general, you need to go to the 'tools menu' or the 'configuration menu' and then choose the settings or preferences.

You may also refuse the use of cookies by Google and the processing of data about you by Google by downloading and installing the appropriate plug-in for your browser at <https://tools.google.com/dlpage/gaoptout?hl=fr>.

Please note that if you choose to block all cookies, you may find that browsing our site or using certain functions may be impaired.

6. Managing your cookie preferences

The Institute uses a Consent Management Platform to manage consent.

Where technically possible and where cookies are not strictly necessary, we will block non-essential cookies until you give your consent, as we operate our site on an opt-in basis to protect your privacy.

Please note, however, that accepting only necessary cookies may affect your browsing experience (for example, refusing functional cookies will not allow you to view videos on the website).

Before using our website, you will see a cookie banner where you can choose to allow all cookies, allow only necessary cookies or adjust your preferences for a more personalised approach to cookie management.

You can change your cookie preferences at any time by going to this page and using the 'cookie settings' button.

For more information on how we process your data, please refer to the Privacy Policy.

7. Change to this cookie policy

This cookie policy can be consulted on the Institute's website. We reserve the right to amend and supplement it at any time without prior notice and at our sole discretion in order to take account of regulatory developments in particular. The updated version is published.

The date of the last update appears on this Policy. This Policy is available in French and English. In the event of any discrepancy between the two versions, the French version shall prevail.

Date of last update: 09.10.2024
